FIRST SHIPMENT OF MOTORS TO ARRIVE AT HATBORO TODAY

Eight Carloads To Reach Site of New Brewster Plant This Morning

WORTH OVER A MILLION

Motors Will Be Stored Until Plane Production Gets Under Way

HATBORO, Mar. 13—A shipment of the latest type airplane motors valued at more than a million dollars is scheduled to arrive here today on a special freight train of eight cars. The shipment was to have arrived yesterday, but was delayed in transit. It is expected to reach here this morning.

This was the largest single shipment of airplane motors in eastern United States, not only in peace-time but all time. The exact number of motors was not disclosed, but the value was placed at $1,250,000.

They have been purchased by the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation for installation in the Brewster Bombers that will get into production in July with the completion of the new $2,500,000 airport and airplane plant of the Warminster Corporation, a subsidiary of the Brewster, at Johnsville, Bucks county.

Today's shipment came from the Wright factories at Nashville, Tenn. The engines are 1250 H. P. Wright Whirlwind type, and the very latest design. They will be installed in the

Urge All Veterans To Register For Defense

War veterans and Legionnaires are again being urged to fill out the national defense questionnaires, which may be secured from members of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion.

The signing of the questionnaire in no way increases the obligation on the part of the individual to serve the United States to a greater degree than the obligations of citizenship generally," state post officials.

"Completing the questionnaire only expresses the willingness to assist constituted authorities in certain capacities if requested, as well as reporting on the qualifications for such service.

"Preservation of our American way of life, and maintenance of the form of government best designed to protect our American home, constitute the most important job for the entire membership of the American Legion and the citizens of our country.

"In times of great emergency, such as war or the threat of war, or the disasters of fire or flood, the normal protective agencies thus established are not adequate to furnish complete protection at home. The American Legion has met such situations in many communities of the nation, and by reason of its experience, units of its membership have augmented the existing public agencies which operate at such times."

Anticipating that emergency situations are likely to arise in this nation as a result of the world-wide crisis, a call has come to the Department of Pennsylvania to formulate and initiate some plan of home defense, which, while state-wide, would be adaptable in a general way to all of the communities within this department.

The emergency duty which may be requested is an outgrowth of this questionnaire will be purely voluntary in character and without remuneration unless otherwise provided for by agencies of the government responsible for requesting such service or undertakings, it is said.

The questionnaires may be obtained at the Bracken Post home, or from Henry Elmer, 809 Garden street; Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., 120 Jefferson avenue; or H. Wesley Spencer, Mill and Radcliffe streets.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Wynn H. Lewis, of Great Bend, held on a manslaughter charge in the death of Millard Gilligan, of Warminster, was released by a Coroner's jury sitting at Quakertown.

The jury ruled that Gilligan met his death in an unavoidable highway accident.

Private M. P. Yetter, of the Quakertown detail, Pennsylvania Motor Police, testified as to his investigation of the accident which took place on the Bethlehem pike, two miles south of Quakertown, on January 24.

Yetter said that Gilligan was struck by Lewis' car. Witnesses told the policeman that Gilligan was taking a water bucket back to a road stand when he walked into the path of the defendant's car. The youth died in the Quakertown Community Hospital.

Others to testify were: Albert Carr, Warminster, owner of the truck which Gilligan had been driving; James Althouse, Sellersville, and Samuel T. Pulmer, Norristown.

Coroner H. Clayton Moyer conducted the inquest.

Short Illness is Fatal To Mrs. Carrie McBrien

Death yesterday claimed Mrs. Carrie E. McBrien, wife of the late Jacob McBrien, in Harrison Hospital, following a short illness. Mrs. McBrien suffered a stroke of paralysis last week, and two days later was removed to the hospital.

Survivors of Mrs. McBrien, are a daughter, Miss Elizabeth McBrien, Bristol; and a son, J. Russell McBrien; three grandchildren and two great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Julia Simon, Beverly, N. J.; and one brother, Uriah Woolman, of Burlington, N. J.

The late Mrs. McBrien was a member of Bristol Methodist Church, and Shepherd's Delight Lodge, No. 1, Shepherds of Bethlehem.

The funeral service will take place at the Ruel funeral home, 314 Cedar street, on Sunday at two p. m. Interment will be made in Bristol Cemetery, and friends may call Saturday evening.

WOMAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN MOTOR CRASH

Mrs. Laura Hook, Connecticut, Has Fractured Skull, Nose; Broken Ankle

FALLSINGTON ACCIDENT

FALLSINGTON, Mar. 13—Finding herself in the predicament of having no place of safety to steer her automobile, as she passed one machine on the Lincoln highway, here, and found a car stopped in her path, a resident of Bridgeport, Conn., was seriously injured yesterday afternoon.

The injured is: Mrs. Laura Hook, aged 48, who suffered a fracture of the skull, fractured nose, broken right ankle, multiple lacerations of the forehead and foot. She is a patient in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., where for some time she remained in a semi-conscious condition.

According to report of Corp. Evans and private Marks of Oxford Valley barracks, Mrs. Hook passed a car, then another machine waiting a left-hand turn blocked her path, she crashed into an oncoming truck. Her car was completely wrecked.

The driver of the truck, C. Arthur Johnson, Bristol, Conn., was unhurt.

Food Demonstration Given Before Mothers' Association

The monthly meeting of the Mothers' Association of Bristol public schools was held in the high school auditorium last evening, with Mrs. Earl McEuen presiding.

After business, the members were entertained with a food demonstration by a dairy company.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Frank Torano, chairman, and her committee members.

Two Bucks Countians And One Other Hurt in Crash

Two Bucks County men, and an official of a Bridgeport mill, were injured in a motor crash on the DeKalb Pike, north of Center Square, Tuesday evening.

The injured are: Harvey Barndt, 28, of Sellersville, driver of a furniture van, and his helper, Richard Vendt, 23, of Telford; and Joseph L. Eastwick, 44, vice president of James Lees and Sons Co., Bridgeport.

Barndt was removed to Quakertown Hospital with fractures of both knees; Vendt was taken to Elm Terrace Hospital, Lansdale, and treated for cuts; and Eastwick is a patient in Montgomery Hospital, Norristown.

Eastwick, a resident of Norristown, informed officials that his machine skidded and crashed into the truck. He is chairman of Norristown chapter of the Red Cross.

REAL ESTATE BOARD CONSIDERS METHODS TO PUBLICIZE COUNTY

Dinner Conference Held With Group of Newspaper Representatives

MEET IN DOYLESTOWN

Numerous Committees Submit Reports On Work of The Association

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 13—Newspapermen from Bucks County, Philadelphia, and Newark were guests of the Bucks County Real Estate Board last night at the first of a series of dinner conferences planned for the coming months. The dinner was held in the Fountain House and the subject discussed was "What I Would Stress in Publicizing Bucks County."

Approximately 40 were present and after brief routine reports of committees of the Real Estate Board the meeting developed into an open forum as to the numerous and most effective ways in which to publicize Bucks County.

Charles Heyer, Bustleton, president of the association, presided and the meeting was arranged by Richard Fechtenburg, Edgington, vice-president and also chairman of the publicity committee.

The newspapermen each spoke briefly and suggested ways in which they thought more publicity could be obtained for Bucks County and they also gave their ideas as to the character of the publicity in order for it to be most effective.

Furnishing the press with timely facts about sales and rentals of property in the county; zoning of the county; the preparation and distribution to the press of illustrations and text concerning places of historical interest and outstanding prominence were some of the ways suggested by which

Train Draft Army For Combat Service

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13—The War Department has ordered corps area commanders throughout the United States to concentrate on training America's draft army for combat service, it was learned today.

Orders sent the commanders state that all draftees with a good education should be assigned to combat service training rather than to some other branch of the Army for which they might be especially suited.

Purpose of this move is understood to be a desire on the part of the General Staff to build up a strong fighting force as quickly as possible for two reasons—

1. To have such a force available for an emergency.
2. To have experienced troops available for training new draftees in combat service should it be necessary to speed up conscription.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

It's Our War Now

Washington, March 12. JUST to measure the distance we have come since the war began—seventeen months ago—it may be recalled that in September, 1939, the President, as required by law, proclaimed an embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition to any belligerent nation.

IN the following November this embargo, was repealed, but the Neutrality Act was otherwise strengthened by a prohibition against foreign loans and a section which made it a crime to sell to Great Britain except for cash, the goods to be carried in her own bottoms. At that time a strict neutrality was the overwhelming approved national policy. So anxious were we to take no sides that we actually ditched the historic freedom-of-the-seas doctrine, for which we had steadfastly stood for generations, and imposed restrictions which limited our traveling privileges and curtailed our commerce.

CONTRAST that with our present position. On the night following its passage the lease-lend bill was referred to by an American radio commentator in England as an "unofficial declaration of war against Hitler." Few realistic persons will dispute the accuracy of that description. The remnants of the old Neutrality Act have now been thrown out the window and we have become the open and avowed ally of the British, officially committed to aid them, regardless of cost, in the defeat of their enemy, who thus becomes our enemy too.

IF that does not amount to a dec-

Prayer Offered for Those In The War-Torn Lands

EDDINGTON, Mar. 13—Miss Merian S. Peters, world traveler, writer and lecturer, was the speaker at a postponed union service held last evening in Eddington Presbyterian Church in observance of the World Day of Prayer.

Miss Peters gave intimate glimpses of individuals, families and communities in distant places whom she had come to know and love, because of their sterling qualities and simple virtues. She emphasized the importance of strong and religious faith, and the practice of prayer in the development of strength of character which enables people throughout the war-torn world to carry on in spite of incredible hardships.

At the conclusion of her introduction to her audience of each individual or family, now suffering because of the ravages of war, Miss Peters called upon her hearers to join with her in prayer that they may be sustained in this time of trial.

At the close of the talk, in response to a call to prayer, Mrs. William Dittmer sang very effectively the hymn "For You I Am Praying."

As Miss Peters spoke, small electric lights marked the place to which she referred on a large map of the world, placed at the front of the church auditorium.

The Rev. Arthur D. Sargis, pastor of the host church, presided, and was assisted by the Rev. Herman Doh, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Andalusia.

The offering received was for four union projects: Union Christian Colleges in the Orient; publication of "Christian Literature"; Indians in our U. S. Government schools; and migrant groups, especially in the great Southwest and West.

Sixty were in attendance at the service.

Pneumonia Affects All Ages, The Strong and The Weak

Preventive measures to guard against pneumonia, and the causes and cures of the disease were presented in terms easily understood by the layman, when Dr. James P. Lawler, a Bristol physician, addressed members of the student body of Bristol high school, yesterday afternoon.

Introduced by the president of the student body, Peter Spezzano, at the assembly period in the high school auditorium, Dr. Lawler was secured for the occasion by Mrs. Minerva Epstein, health educator of the Division of Health Education, Pennsylvania Department of Health.

"If the temperature rises we know that the condition has reached the point beyond a common cold," stated Dr. Lawler. "It may become influenza or something more serious." The possible results of a common cold were given consideration, the physician informing the pupils as to how the mucous membrane becomes inflamed,

SERVICE AND DEFENSE

Evidently a feeling is beginning to make itself manifest in government
circles that while deferment in selective service should be granted only
for paramount reasons, it is equally important that the operation of the draft should not be permitted in any way to impede defense production.
This thought is given form in a statement just made by Brig. Gen. Lewis
B. Hershey, deputy director of selective service.

Pointing to a growing shortage of
skilled workers for the rapidly expanding defense industries, General Hershey reminded state directors of selective service of a provision in the act that it must be administered so that it will "not interrupt, delay or impede the national defense program."

"There is a dual responsibility imposed upon local boards," General Hershey said. "They must not only select those who are needed by the armed forces, but must also defer
those who are necessary in the production of defense materials. They must take fully into consideration
the entire defense picture in making
that selection or deferment."

General Hershey thereby puts full responsibility upon local draft boards
for making distinctions. In so doing
he substitutes for well-defined policy,
clearly marked, an interpretation by individuals which is likely to be open to a multitude of conceptions
so varied as to result in undesirable
confusion. The lack of formulation
of such a policy was one of the weaknesses of the draft measure.

The taking of men from profitable
jobs, whether connected with defense
industries or not, was another, particularly in view of the fact that some millions of unemployed persons were available for training. In the official enthusiasms for selective service imposed upon all those within specified
age groups, sight was lost of the desirability of preserving the economic strength of the country while its strength for defense was built up.

Obviously there are extreme difficulties in drawing lines with exact firmness. All these matters may be adjusted, but the question of deferment may be cited as proof that not all the problems of defense were fully
considered when the selective service
law was drafted.

ENCIRCLED

Japan is the latest country to become jumpy over the danger of being encircled. This is one of the numerous ailments that, combined, compose Hitler's insanity. Many moons ago Mussolini had the same haywire idea. His hallucination about it was so vivid that he included an impossible country like Ethiopia in his empire to increase his breathing
space. Stalin is suffering from a like seizure. How otherwise explain the foolish invasion of Finland?

Apparently Japan has determined that unless it can appropriate a great part of Asia and all the outlying islands in the Pacific Ocean life will not be worth living.

All this is the more confusing
when it is recalled that the happiest
nations on earth do not give the en-
circling problem a thought and one nation with an enviable record is the most completely encircled country
on earth and seems wholly to ignore
its inconvenience—Switzerland.

Maybe dictators get along together as psychiatrists do—by treating one another as cases.

Jews Today Celebrate The Feast of Lots

The apocryphal story of the Jewish people's deliverance from oppression will
be recalled in synagogues and homes
when Jews will celebrate The Feast of Lots today. The holiday falls on the fourteenth day of Adar of the Jewish calendar, and is known as Purim.

Distinctly applicable to present day
conditions which find them driven from
one country to another to escape baseless persecution, the Purim story is concerned with the attempted destruction of the Jews of Persia. Because Esther, a lovely Jewess who was Queen of Persia, intervened and uncon-
vinced the plot to her royal husband Ahastuerus, the Jews were permitted to defend and save themselves.

The Book of Esther, tells the Biblical story with its message of eternal hope and eventual deliverance. The story, written on a Scroll, called the Megillah will be read at synagogue services. Megillahs, often beautifully hand-written and decorated, are among the most beautiful Jewish ceremonial objects. A modern Megillah printed in English and hand-painted is one of the newest additions to the history of Jewish art.

Purim is a joyous feast marked by masquerades, theatricals, remembering
the poor and gift-giving, special delicacies in the home. Among these latter are three-cornered pastries called "Hamantaschen" so named after the hat of Haman, the villain who sought
from King Ahastuerus the decree of

Lover Come Back

by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Sondra had started for the door,
when Dynamite called her back.

"About this fish war, Sondy?" He paused a moment, fixing her with a quizzical, speculative eye. "This is to be messy, as are all wars. But while it lasts, we can't afford to show any weakness, or have any traffic with the enemy. Ye understand?"

"I'm not quite sure I do, lamb."
"Look, then. The way to end a war is to win it. And ye win the sooner by bein' everlastingly hard.
No truces. No half-measures. This Reynall, lad, now—by the eye of him,
he'll take a divil of a beatin' before admittin' he's licked. But till he does admit it, ye have neither words
nor time to waste on him. Do ye agree, darlin'?"

"Y-ess-s. Of course. But there's the likelihood that Jean Reynall
will ever try to take up any of my time—now."

"So-o-o?" The Captain's eyes
twinkled up at her. "Well, when I was his age, the devil himself
couldn't have stopped me from
takin' up the time of a gurl like you!
But I'm glad ye fall in with me
sentiments, Sondy; for if that young pup ever again steps foot
inside me door—save with the transfer papers to the Globy—I'll have him heaved out on his ear."

As Sondra left the room, she remembered the unlocked chest in the attic, and ran up to turn the key in each one. She returned to the upper hall just as Polena came pulling up
the servants' stairway from below.
The old housekeeper had a black
look on her face and a freshly pressed blouse on her arm. "That one!" she wheezed. "Coming down
with her high-and-mighty orders!
'Press this, Polena!' Without a
please or a thank you, I swear
I—"

"Polena dear, I'm in a terrific hurry. Liane and I are going down to the village to see about music for the party."

"Going? She's gone already—that
one. She left word you'd find her
at the floating cannery with young Reynall."

"With Je—" Sondra bit her lip
on the name, and on the quick, raw emotion that shook her. This, somehow, was the last crushing straw
on the morning's load of frustration.

Sondra, with Liane's music score
clipped under one arm, strode along the O'Moore float toward the little runabout that was a birthday gift
from her grandfather. Her eyes
were stormy, her chin set, and there was snap in every movement as she tossed the painter aboard, leaped
into the open cockpit, and started the engine.

The Spindrift steered like an automobile. She swung it in a violent arc and went shooting past the Globy's dingy hull, hair blowing back, eyes narrowed against the stinging spray, as she headed for the Indian village down the channel.

Shady Lane, bent over a winch
on the floating cannery, straightened his blue-denim length and waved his oil can. "Go it, Redhead!"
he cheered. Kemp Starbuck, from the wharf in front of his plant,
called something through cupped
hands. But Sondra was blind to everything except a hot resolve to waste no time in the delivery of Dynamite's message to Katlean.
Captain Jean Reynall would soon
learn that the rôle of gallant host
had cost him his last, slim chance
for a season's pack of herring.

An hour later Sondra returned
to find Kemp and her grandfather
talking over a scatter of papers
that lay between them on the table.
Kemp was saying, "Ever though
this contract assures me of your entire catch, sir, I hardly think I shall
at any time be loaded up with more fish than I can handle. However, if it should happen, I'll gladly respect
your proviso that no part of them
is to be turned over to Reynall."

"Good! 'Tis a small point, but an important one—to me." He glanced up. "Hoh, Sondy!" His expectant gaze probed past her.
"Where's Katlean?"

"He wasn't home." Sondra waved Kemp back to his chair, and went on, wearily. "His mother tried to tell me something but I couldn't understand her Thingoet. I left a note for him to come here the moment he—"

"Katlean—not home?" The Captain's eyebrows bushed suspicious-
ly. "Could Reynall have hold of him
already, d'ye suppose?"

"I hardly think so," interposed
Kemp, with a chuckle. "Reynall's
dispatch boat, the Baltic, with himself at the wheel, passed our plant
some time before Sondra flew by in her runabout. Miss Bootin was helping him steer, and neither of them seemed seriously intent upon
anything—except each other."

"Hah!" The Captain's knowing
grin was the broader for his allayed
anxiety. "He will do no business this day, with Liane's hooks into him.
Distractin' as a three-alarm fire,
that one. . . . Now, now, Starbuck!
Don't rush off. Stay and join us
here in a bite of lunch."

Lunch was just over when Liane
breezed in, stripping a crimson ker-
chief from her dark head and whirling it about her.

"Greetings, darlings!" Her voice
was vibrant, her eyes glowed with a febrile brilliance. "I've had a simply marvelous morning with Jean Reynall. Caught him just leaving for the Indian village, and went along. I knew you'd be down later, Sondra."

"I was. But I didn't see you."

"No. We stopped there just long enough to pick up Katlean; then all took a run down Peril Strait. Boy!
can that little tub of Jean's ramble!
I did the steering, while Jean and Katlean went into a huddle over the catch of the native herring fleet.
Jean was all hot to get Katlean
signed up, you see." She helped herself to a couple of cakes, and bit
into one with relish.

"Well, well?" The Captain's fingers were drumming the arms of his chair. "What did Katlean say?"

"Oh, he didn't want to sign, just then. But I took care of that!" Her airy gesture scattered crumbs.

"What d'ye mean—you took care
of it?"

"Boo! Boo!" Liane ducked toward him, laughing. "Don't be so savage, Cap! . . . I mean—I took care of it. Jean's such a sweet boy,
and his heart was so set on that contract he had no time for anything else until it was settled."

Sondra—she sampled another cake
appreciatively—"I trotted out my Thinget corpse and made Katlean sign on the dotted line. I only wish there'd been a few more to sign, the way Jean glad-handed me
after—Sa-ay! What's burning you two?" She stared from Sondra to the Captain.

Sondra was biting her lips to hold back expressions no lady should utter. The Captain was glowering. Now he jutted out his chin and mimicked acidly, "Such a sweet boy! And his heart so set on that contract! So ye just took care of it all—ye did!" In his glare was helpless exasperation. He nodded, and softly, bitterly, snarled,
"Lucky. . . Jean Reynall."

"Well, after a-l-l!" Liane gasped
defensively. "I only—"
"Ye only fixed it so I'll have to stop those poor devils of natives
from getting even their small share
of fish," the Captain cut in harshly.
"I hope they thank ye for it properly
when they're hungry this winter.
And I hope Reynall takes pleasure
in his contract, for 'tis little else
he'll net from it!"

Kemp stirred uneasily. "If you'll excuse me, I—"
"Just a minute, Kemp," Sondra
rose with a forced smile. "Liane and I have something to discuss with
you. Shall we go down to the library and leave Dynamite to fulmi-
nate with his fish?"

"By all means!" Liane captured
Kemp's arm and whisked him
through the door.

Sondra paused to lay a hand on the Captain's shoulder. "Never mind, lamb. You said yourself the Indians catch is of no importance;
so what if he did get the contract?"

"'Tis not so much that he got it, Sondy, as how he got it."

"I know, darling. But if he got nothing important—"
"He's got one thing that's mighty
important—and that's the devil's
own luck!" The Captain's eyes narrowed speculatively. "And he said
. . . he'd find a way. . . to collect on that contract. Sondy! Better fetch me that envelope marked 'Bates'
from the safe downstairs. I'll just make sure that bit of paper is still secure under hatches."

Sondra found Kemp and Liane
waiting for her in the library.

"Listen to the smashing idea Kemp
has for my torch dance, Sondra!
He—"

"Wait a moment, until I've taken these papers up to Dynamite. He's a bit grumpy just now."

"When isn't he?" Liane murmured to Kemp from the side of her mouth.

Sondra went to a long tapestry
panel between two bookcases and,
tucking it back, revealed the front
of an old-fashioned safe.

Kemp grinned. "Ah! The secret
hiding-place!"
"Nothing very secret about it,"
declared Sondra. "Mr. Jarvis gave the old relic to Dynamite last year
when he got himself a new office
safe. It was rather an eyesore, so I had it recessed like this."

"Another of my romantic notions blasted!" Kemp sighed with mock regret. "Nothing secret but the combination. And we won't spy on that.
Come, Liane, face the window with me and keep your eye on the birds
outside. We must be above suspicion should some modern Jimmy Valentine ever loot the strongbox."

Sondra laughed as she spun the
dial. "He wouldn't get enough to buy a postage stamp. Dynamite
locks the thing only to stop Polena
from doing away with old papers
and maps he insists on keeping."

When Sondra returned after delivering the Bates envelope to her grandfather, her guests had gone
into the drawing room.

Liane was standing on the temporary platform that had been erected to fill the alcove at the far end of the room. "Here's the perfect stage for my dance, Sondra!"
She whirled on her toes.

"But—that's the musicians' dais."

"I know. But while I dance they can sit in the big bay window over there. She turned a cartwheel and landed lightly on her feet. "You see? No matter how big the crowd,
everyone will be able to get a good
view of me up here. Now, Kemp,
you tell her the big idea."

"Well, when I learned the nature of Liane's dance, I was reminded of a pyrotechnic powder—Venetian Fire—that we used for stage effects
when I was at the Ac—er—university. It sort of between a magnesium flare and the old-fashioned photographic flash powder, you know. When ignited, it explodes
with a dull report, but burns slowly
with a beautiful red light. Luckily
I found some in our commissary,
left over from last Fourth of July.
So—"

"Here's what we'll do, Sondra," Liane broke in impetuously. "Lay
the powder in a little trench along
the front of the platform. Then,
at the climax of my dance, I'll swoop
down with my torches and touch it off while the drums roll and the saxes scream. Boom! Waaa-ahh!
I'll dance the finale in the midst of leaping ruby flames. Isn't it gorgeous?"

"Well—yes. But I don't want you to set the house afire."

"There's not a bit of danger, Sondra," Kemp assured her. "There isn't enough heat in it to ignite a sheet of paper."

"And you won't need to give a
single thought to the arrangements, Sondra. Kemp will manage the lights and everything. By the way,
Kemp, what are you going to wear?"

He grinned. "In deference to your Thinget corpse, I'm going to save savage. You've seen that splendid Killer Whale blanket and crest hat
down at the Indian School Museum?"

"You'd roast to death in that lout, you nut! Besides, they wouldn't let it out of the museum
for love nor money."

"I'm not asking them, my dear.
Keda, who is a clever copyist, is making a duplicate on heavy cream
silk. He will stain my hair black, of course, to go with it."

"Oh, Kemp!" Sondra cried reproachfully. "Going to all that trouble when you might have worn
the uniform and decorations of Michael Karmanova!"

He turned his back on Liane and,
stepping close to Sondra, looked down into her face with an odd, wist-
ful expression. "A naval uniform—
with decorations," he repeated soft-
ly. "My darling—you would do me
much honor. Much more than I—deserve."

RECIPES: Those Which Interest Women

Steal March On Economy In March

Explorers In Food Will Find Many Tempting Dishes At Low Cost

March is a deadline month. Winter goes under the deadline, taxes are due, the wardrobe has that off-season look—but why go further? Every home-maker knows there are clamps on her budget.

Inez S. Willson, home economist, points out that food chosen wisely can be chosen economically without sacrificing the tastiness of a meal, its attractiveness, or any of its value as food.

A secret of keeping economy meals nutritionally sound is to plan them as you would do all other meals—with meat as the center. Many of its meat fit an economy budget. While low in price they are still high in food value, and a boost to the palatability of the meal.

Most economical cuts of meat may not be the most familiar. In fact, because they are less-known and therefore less-demanded, they are more economically priced. A thrifty home-maker takes advantage of this law of supply and demand and makes the less-demanded cuts into delicious meals for her family.

Short Ribs of Beef

Short ribs of beef are an example of delicious economy. Where's the meat that doesn't consider short ribs a treat—just watch the orders in a restaurant when short ribs are on the menu. Why not have them at home? Short ribs are cut from ends of ribs and are best when braised. To braise, brown the meat in a little fat, add a small amount of water, cover and cook until tender.

Barbecued short ribs are made by adding barbecue sauce, rather than water, and cooking slowly on top of the range or in the oven until the short ribs are tender.

Economy Tips On Pork

Here's an economy tip concerning ham slices. Ask for ham butt slices rather than center-cut ham. If you're trying to budge the budget, you'll find they're full of flavor.

And did you know that the end section of the pork loin makes good competition for the center-cut section, as far as flavor is concerned? It's a little harder to carve, but you'll enjoy the smart economy in choosing the end section of pork loin.

Lamb shanks make another dish which furnishes definite proof that economy cuts of meat can be as tempting as the more popular cuts. I think you'd like them braised and stuffed with pearl barley.

Stuffed Lamb Shanks

Brown lamb shanks in hot fat; add several cups water; season with salt and pepper. Cover the shanks; let simmer until tender, about one and a half hours. Take the meat from the broth and when cool enough to handle, remove the bones. Cook one-fourth pound of barley in the lamb broth. You may have to add a little more water if the broth has cooked down considerably.

Stuff the boned shanks with cooked barley and thicken the remaining lamb broth. Add the stuffed shanks, cover and heat thoroughly.

Explore the Meat Market

There are many other attractive dishes made from the less-demanded cuts of meat. It is important to become acquainted with these cuts and to make them a familiar part of the menu. You can do this by exploring the meat markets; studying charts which show the cuts of beef, veal, pork, or lamb, and by making a conscious effort to try these cuts which are different. Go exploring for valuable discoveries.

Spicy Recipes

Spicy cup cakes and breads are "different" dainties that will always win the approval of your friends. If you don't agree, try one of the following and be convinced.

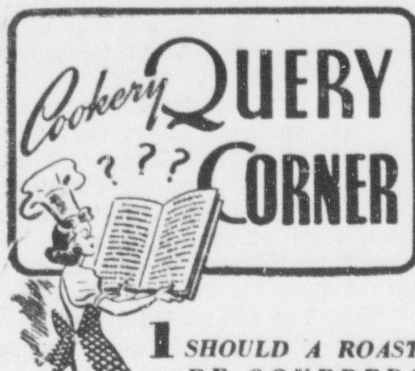

Bishop's Bread

- 4 eggs
- 2/3 cupful sugar
- 3/4 cupful pastry flour
- 1/3 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pounded sifted anise seed

2/3 teaspoon baking powder
Beat the yolks of the eggs until thick and lemon-colored, add the sugar, and beat five minutes longer. Sift and add the flour, baking powder, and salt, and then the anise extract or pounded seed. Last, fold in the whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Bake in a well-oiled shallow pan in a slow oven—325-350 degrees F.—about three-quarters of an hour. Next day cut the cake into three-quarter inch slices and bake in a hot oven until delicately browned. If desired, the slices may be dusted with powdered sugar before baking.

Cocoa Cup Cakes

- 1/4 cupful butter or a substitute
- 1 cupful sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/4 cupfuls pastry flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

I SHOULD A ROAST BE COVERED?

No, the cover for a roasting pan can be put on the shelf with the moustache cup. A roast that is covered becomes a pot-roast, for the enclosed steam makes moist heat. Roasting is possible only with dry heat, so we add no water and use no cover.

2 HOW DO YOU GET CRISPY, BROWNED POTATOES?

3 Pare uniform, medium potatoes and parboil ten minutes; drain, place around roast and bake forty minutes (or until soft); turn often and baste with the meat drippings to brown. Delicious that way? They're called Franconia potatoes, when you want to be fancy.

- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/3 cupful powdered cocoa
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/3 teaspoon ground clove
- 1/2 cupful milk or cold coffee

Cream together the shortening, sugar, and yolks of eggs. Sift together the flour, salt, baking powder, cocoa, and spices and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Fold in the whites of the eggs, which have been beaten until stiff. Half fill oiled muffin pans, and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven—350-375 degrees F. Serve plain or cover with a white or chocolate frosting.

Dressings For Foods

Salads, like debutantes, are much more alluring when presented with proper dressings. But the salad dressing must taste good as well as look good. Here are three modern dressings that you will find more than satisfactory.

Salad Dressing Without Eggs

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 saltspoon salt and pepper
- 1 teaspoon mixed mustard
- 1/2 cup cream or milk
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch

Combine butter, sugar, salt and pepper, mustard, cream or milk, and vinegar; add starch mixed to a paste with a little cold water. Cook over low heat until thickened.

Salade Au Pernod

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1/2 cup small, toasted bread cubes
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 cup salad oil

1/2 cup Pernod
Mix seasonings well. Rub bread cubes with cut side of garlic clove. Toss with seasonings. Mix oil and Pernod; add bread cubes and shake well. Serve on green salad. Approximate yield: 1 1/2 cups dressing

Spiced Dressing

- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon chopped chives
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar flavored with horseradish
- 1 shallot, finely chopped, or dash of onion juice
- 1/2 cup salad oil

Combine ingredients and beat well. Chill. Serve on veal, egg, or vegetable salad.

Birthday Rennet-Custard

- 1 pkg lemon rennet powder
- 1 pint milk, ordinary or homogenized
- 4 - 5 maraschino cherries
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1/4 cup sugar
- A few pecan nuts

Set out 4 or 5 individual dessert glasses. Warm milk slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When comfortably warm (120 degrees F.), not hot, remove at once from heat. Stir rennet powder into milk briskly until dissolved—not over one minute. Pour at once, while still liquid, into individual dessert glasses. Do not move until firm—about 10 minutes. Chill in refrigerator. When ready to serve, whip the cream, adding sugar just before it gets stiff. Top rennet-custards with whipped cream and place the pecan nuts over the whipped cream. Place a maraschino cherry in the center.

South Sea Fruit Cup

- Combine:
 - 2 cups orange sections
 - 1 cup fresh pineapple cubes
 - 1 cup shredded coconut
- With:
 - 1 cup orange juice
 - 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
- Add:
 - 1 teaspoon diced, preserved or candied ginger

If available, add one of the following fruits: Cherimoya, Papaya or Sapote. Serves six.

The average dollar value of U. S. farms, as shown by the 1940 Census, was $5,518.

Pupils, Adults Eager For School Circus

was the first that this exhibition featured a circus, and the show met with such success that a repeat performance has been planned ever since last year's circus ended. This year, the "big top" is back again with thrills and frills galore, which guarantee to make this year's performances "bigger and better than ever."

Certain to gain the spotlight this year are some new acts, such as the "Hawaiian Dances," featuring the original Hawaiian lasses; the "Dance of Death," a special girls' entry; the "Pyramid Builders," the "Cowgirls on Parade," and the "Elephant" Back again, but with new thrills to please the circus-goers are the ever present clowns, the great Bensalem circus parade, led by the Bensalem high school band, the Wild West show, boys' and girls' tumbling and apparatus, the side shows consisting of the greatest collection of human freaks and animal acts ever assembled, and the variety sports tableau.

Other acts of no less interest are the various girls' tap dances, always a feature; the drum majorettes march; "Comin' Through the Rye," a seventh grade folk dance; the glove drill by ninth grade girls; and many other unscheduled laughs and gasps.

From 300 to 400 girls and boys of the Bensalem Junior-Senior high school participate, and most of them are elaborately costumed and spotlighted.

The circus is directed by the high school athletic coach, Miss Helen Smith and George Reimer. Opening remarks will be made by superintendent of Bensalem schools, A. Kurtz King.

General admission and reserved seat tickets may be procured at the high school. The performance each night will open at eight o'clock.

King's Theatre Guild Cancels Plans For Play

ANDALUSIA, Mar. 13—The National Defense Program forces the King's Theatre Guild to cancel all plans for the spring play. This is due to the irregular working hours of many of the male members, making it impossible for these particular members to make any definite promises for the future. Even the men who have day-time jobs find it almost impossible to make definite commitments too far into the future, because of the many calls for overtime.

At the last meeting of the Guild it was decided to cancel all arrangements for the play. A busy program was planned for all who could participate, however.

It was decided to hold a directing contest. Any members who wishes can now try out their abilities in that line by coaching one-act plays which will be presented before the whole Guild.

Men over 18 years of age, interested in dramatics, are invited to enter their application for membership. The girls also will be most welcome.

Those interested may communicate with Miss Lorena Cassile, R. F. D. No. 2, Bristol, Pa., or call Bristol 2866.

favorable publicity could be obtained for Bucks County. It was generally agreed that facts and rentals and sales should be given to the press when they are news and not kept until a long list is compiled and long after the facts are publicly known.

All agreed that Bucks County really has something to publicize and that with its proper presentation new residents and new industries will be attracted to the area.

Chairmen of committees of the Board in presenting their reports took to task those who are misusing the name "realtor." The Board plans to proceed against those so doing.

"Windshield appraisals" was the term given by Carroll Molloy, Doylestown, to appraisals made of properties by those who simply drive up in front of a property, look it over and then attempt to fix its value. This is actually done, according to Mr. Molloy. He cited an instance of where a committee sent out by a bank recently were never nearer than 800 feet of the property.

Otto Grupp, Croydon, who has recently been named by the president of the National Real Estate Board to the taxation committee of that association, has stated that his committee had conferred with the secretary of the Bucks County Commissioners in an effort to have the county commissioners set aside for park purposes ground which had already been acquired by the county, either through tax sales or other means. Mr. Grupp also reported that the Commissioners had been discussing the subject of a central planning and zoning board.

Mr. Grupp informed the meeting that with the advancement of Bucks County to a fifth class county that it was the opinion of some that there should be named a board for the revision of taxes. The County Commissioners had advised Mr. Grupp that they had been informed that such a board was not mandatory and Mr. Grupp stated that other legal opinion would be obtained. If such a board is named the realtors want to be represented upon it.

Another pertinent question asked by Mr. Grupp was as to what is to be the final disposition of the properties being taken over by the county as the result of tax sales. A conference is to be held concerning this.

Exemption of realtors from the payment of mercantile tax was advocated by Mr. Grupp's committee, as realtors also are licensed by the state and pay a tax for conducting their business.

Representative Thomas B. Stockham was queried on this latter question by Mr. Grupp and Mr. Stockham informed that he had presented a bill in the legislature which would provide for such exemption on the basis that the mercantile tax is to cover the sale of merchandise and not a tax for the rendering of services such as that given by the realtors.

Bertie Sylvester, of Sylvester and Kenting, South Langhorne, stated there are 29 building and loan associations in Bucks County but that there is not a county league of building and loan associations.

Richard W. Fechtenburg told of the literature distributed publicizing Bucks County. This literature was distributed at the New York World's Fair and also at the meeting of the National Real Estate Board which met in convention in Philadelphia.

Charles Happ, Doylestown, spoke briefly on the progress made by the Bucks County Real Estate Board during the 11 years it has been in existence.

Mrs. Martha Wooley, Lahaska, spoke of the many problems facing realtors due to national defense. "There are problems of housing, sanitation and the prevention of rent profiteering," she said. She told of the formation of the Bucks County Defense Council.

Newspapermen present and who participated in the forum on publicizing Bucks County included William Johnson, Philadelphia Record; Christopher T. Travis, Newark Evening News; Herman L. Altman, Philadelphia Inquirer; William Taylor, Towpath Magazine; Frank S. Moore, Evening Ledger; A. Russell Thomas and Lester Trauch, Doylestown Intelligencer; Miss Grace Chandler, Bucks County Times; William Ellis, Delaware Valley Advance; David Foster, Morrisville Herald; and Serrill D. Dettelson, Bristol Courier.

various newspapers in Bucks and adjoining counties, and in Philadelphia and Trenton, yesterday, would not permit a fair trial.

Mr. Betz argued that if the articles had been published several weeks ago or held over until today, objection would not have been made.

Plaintiff counsel, Webster S. Achey, Doylestown, objected to continuance, but president Judge Hiram H. Keller, and Judge Calvin S. Boyer ruled that for the best interests of all parties concerned, the case will be continued for one term.

State Senator Howard I. James enlarged on Betz's arguments for continuance of the case.

This being the last case for trial at the March term of civil and equity court, the jurors were excused.

A jury in the Bucks county civil court awarded a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. Barbara B. Mendelson, of New Britain, in her suit for $403.04 against her husband, Leon L. Mendelson. Mrs. Mendelson brought suit to collect the value of a number of articles of household goods which the defendant kept when the two became estranged. John L. DuBois, Doylestown, attorney for the defendant, filed a motion for a new trial. Mrs. Mendelson was represented at the trial by Webster S. Achey, Doylestown.

A verdict for the defendant was returned in the case of Richard J. Hill, Phila., against Thomas R. Bleakley. The plaintiff sued to recover $1500 damages which he is alleged to have suffered as the result of an automobile ferried with the secretary of the Bucks County Commissioners in an effort to the germs then travelling possibly to the nasal sinuses and starting an infection; or travelling down into the respiratory tract where bronchitis or pneumonia may develop.

"Pneumonia is an infection of the lungs," the young people were informed. "It affects all ages, rich and poor, the strong and the weak." The symptoms manifest at an early stage were gone over, and the members of the audience were advised to secure services of a physician should an acute chest pain develop.

In answer to the question which he suggested, "What causes this inflammation of the lungs?", Dr. Lawler told that the disease is caused by a germ. The germs multiply rapidly; and the defense mechanism of the body sets up a fever to disturb and destroy these invading germs.

That pneumonia, untreated, is so serious that from 25 to 35 per cent of the victims of the disease die, was one serious point stressed. The speaker told that one person has termed pneumonia "the captain of the men of death," he then adding that there are but two diseases causing more deaths than pneumonia, these being cancer and heart disease. That more than two million residents of the United States have died of pneumonia since 1929 was another statement made.

The development of the disease was traced, and the advancement in treatment mentioned. He told how the air sacs of the lungs are filled out by the invading germs and the debris they leave; thus making breathing difficult. "Smaller amount of space in the lungs thus makes it difficult to secure the necessary amount of oxygen."

In order to administer the modern serums, Dr. Lawler told that typing of the germ is necessary in order to determine the treatment required.

The various types of serums and drugs which have been discovered and developed during the past ten years were mentioned, with Dr. Lawler citing a case where he had treated a baby, less than one month old, who had developed the disease. One of the newer drugs was administered in small quantities, and "in 20 minutes time the baby's breathing became easier; and within 24 hours the temperature was normal."

"What can we as individuals do about pneumonia?" queried the physician, he then asking the young folks to co-operate in the fight against the disease by being judiciously careful of the common cold; avoiding others having colds; secure medical attention when a fever develops; avoiding fatigue; being sensible in work, recreation, ventilation, and then advice was given to eat good, nourishing food. "All these things are great aids in prevention of pneumonia," he concluded.

RAF Planes Bomb Berlin, Hamburg, Bremen

Berlin, Mar. 13 — Killing 16 persons and injuring 37, RAF planes attacked Berlin during the night and also bombed the German seaports of Hamburg and Bremen, the German high command announced today.

At the same time, it was announced that a night German raid on the British port of Liverpool caused havoc even exceeding that of the terrific German attack on Coventry several months ago.

Liverpool's food supplies were especially hard hit, while grain and flour warehouses were seriously damaged. German authorities charged that the British raids on Berlin were chiefly at residential districts of the capital.

An official communique said 10 of the British raiders were shot down. But the attack on Berlin residents dispelled any illusions of Berlin residents that Britain's RAF is no longer able to penetrate to their capital.

A $200 trust fund was created for burial or sickness to be used by Chester A. Carver.

Roddy Randall was bequeathed Mr. Darrah's watch, bookcase, books, sword and victrola.

Marion Randall was bequeathed Wedgewood vases, a locket and chain. The testatrix stipulated that remembrances should be given to Sara J. Packer, Sara A. Barber, Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, Ruth Luff, Mabel Luff and Anna Starr.

Patsy Vandegrift was bequeathed a table cloth and napkins which were given as a wedding gift to the testatrix by Miss Vandegrift's grandparents, Polly and Margaret Roberts are also to receive remembrances.

Sellersville Will Lay New Water Mains

to do the work has been received from Congressman Charles L. Gerlach.

The program calls for a general improvement of the water system by laying a two-mile main from the filter plant at the main supply basin to the reservoir at the edge of the borough, and to further protect the lower end of the community from cutoffs such as created an emergency last year.

The project formally approved will cost approximately $18,000 in WPA funds. This is the section involved in the heavier main for trying in the filter plant and the reservoir. Two other parts of the program will be undertaken later.

It is expected that the current project will last well into the year. When it is completed the borough will no longer be as dependent as it is at present on pumps for carrying water over the watersheds.

To finance the improvement program, the borough is making a heavy increase to its rate schedule, which is now the lowest in the North Penn Valley. The increase is bringing a storm of protest from certain industrial plants, and the United States Gauge, the largest in the borough, is threatening to dig its own well.

First Shipment of Motors To Arrive at Hatboro Today

Brewster bombers at the rate of four or five a day starting in July. The completed bombers will then be delivered to the United States Government, shipped to England and to other countries with whom the Brewster Corporation has close to $200,000,000 in contracts.

Today's shipment is the start of a number of other shipments of motors and airplane parts that are Hatboro-bound. It means that no time will be lost in the defense program so far as Brewster's efficiently operated plant is concerned.

The motors will be trucked from the railroad station to the Hatboro silk mill building recently leased by Brewster for temporary headquarters pending completion of the new factory at Johnsonville.

Incidentally the shipment of motors is by far the most valuable of any shipment ever to arrive at the Hatboro freight station of the Reading Railroad.

the ladies to the meeting and thanked them for making "Fun Night" a success.

After the business session there were duets by Miss Grace Hoffman and Mrs. Helen Benner, accompanied by Mrs. Phyllis Crawford.

Then followed a skit, "Hiring a Secretary," presented by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary in which the players included Register of Wills Edward B. Watson, Mrs. David N. Fell, Mrs. Ed Neis, Mrs. Joseph Crean, Mrs. Leroy Smith, Mrs. Jack Fetterolf and Mrs. Edward B. Watson.

In this skit, "Ted" Watson, as the boss hiring a pretty stenographer, was going great until the arrival of his wife at the office when the whole affair was broken up.

Another skit was presented by Loyal Republican Club Fire Company in which David Lord, Jack Fetterolf, Sheriff William L. Stackhouse, James Muthall, Leroy Smith, John Crean and Gus Wackerman took part.

Then came a riot of fun, the minstrel show with a 100 percent home talent cast, coached by James Skillman of

New Hope, with Mrs. Francis Crinage as pianist. The ends included James Skillman, Earl Handy, Horace Robinson and Harrison Gift, all old-timers on the minstrel stage. The interlocutor was Ted Watson.

Musical numbers by the minstrel circle members were as follows: "My Blue Heaven," Joseph Crean; "When He Comes In I'm Going Out," Harrison Gift; "My Wild Irish Rose," Harris Holmes, Earl Handy, Ralph Dunn, Charles A. Leibig and Joseph Crean; "Dust Off That Old Piano," Earl Handy; "What You Gonna Do When The Rent Comes Round," Horace Robinson; "Cococo," Thomas Keenan; "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," Charles Tiel, of New Hope; "Nobody," James Skillman; novelty act, Bob Detweiler; grand finale.

Stage work was very ably handled by Carroll Michener and James Plummer.

laration of war, then the law just passed and the things we are preparing to do under it have no meaning at all. Of course it is a declaration of war. Moreover, it is a declaration of war which is overwhelmingly in accord with the sentiment of the American people and, now the fight is over, it will be supported by them with remarkable unity. This was attested by the statement of Senator Vandenberg, one of the opponents of the bill, who pointed out that the Senate as a whole was for full aid to the British; that the Germans would be foolish to regard this as a divided country; that the division was only as to method. It was further attested by the ringing call for unity by Republican House Leader Martin, who also had opposed the bill.

AS things are today, the United States is the real Hitler menace. It is true the British bear the brunt of the battle, but they concede they could not hold out without our aid and that only with us as an ally can Hitler be smashed. This, of course, is as clear to Hitler as it is to the British and to those who face the facts here. It means that, without counting the cost, we must now exert our full weight to winning the war. As the President says, that comes first. In this situation, for us to leave anything undone that can be done toward bringing about that result would be completely and criminally unintelligent. It would more than amount to nullifying our own policy—it would create a great national peril.

WITHIN the next year ships, tanks, airplanes, ammunition and other war materials will be manufactured here and sent over there in vast and ever-increasing volume. It is true we are now going about this in the most bungling, inept and costly way. It is true that we are afflicted with strikes, incompetent administration and inner administration intrigue. It is true that much more could be produced at greater speed and less cost. Nevertheless, through the sheer magnitude of the billions we have to spend and the contracts that have been let, the production has begun. Month by month it will increase. It can be retarded and it will be accompanied by immense waste—but it cannot be stopped.

REFLECTING upon our stake in the war and the immensity of our effort to win it, the foolishness of shrinking from any step to insure safe delivery of these vital products is apparent. To spend the energy and money to make this material, to upset the whole life of the nation in order to produce it, and then to stand by and tell the English that we can't do anything to prevent the German submarines from sending it to the bottom of the ocean would be absurd and indefensible. That attitude just cannot be sustained. Anyone who thinks we are going to do that is mistaken.

ANYONE who thinks that, if it becomes necessary—and it almost surely will—to convey our material to England in order to get it there, that we will not supply the convoys, is forgetful of that distance we have traveled since the repeal of the embargo in November, 1939, to the passage of the lease-lend bill in March, 1941. If it becomes necessary, we will not only convey with our own naval vessels but carry in our own boats—and we should do both. It is not possible to take the great stride from the strict neutrality of a year ago to the all-out aid for Britain of the present and then hesitate at any step to make that aid effective. It is our war now and, as Mr. Roosevelt says, it has got to be won.

Editor Courier:

During the past year your paper has been most generous in giving much space for the printing of our church notices. As minister of the Harriman Methodist Church I have realized that we could not pay for this service. The friends and members of our Church look for the church news and read it with great satisfaction.

May I take this humble means of thanking you and your paper for the splendid service you have rendered. On Monday of this week I was appointed to the Girardville Methodist Church. But before leaving I wish to express my appreciation of your willingness to assist the Church by giving so generously of your space in the Courier.

Sincerely yours,

FREE TICKETS FOR GRAND THEATRE

Are you anxious to see "Philadelphia Story" which is coming to the Grand Theatre Sunday? You can see it as the guest of the Grand on Monday or Tuesday if you reasons for wanting to see the picture are good ones.

Here's all you have to do. Just write a letter of 100 words or less telling why you would like to see "Philadelphia Story." Mail your letter not later than midnight Friday to the Grand Theatre.

The writers of the 10 best letters in the opinion of the judges will each receive a pair of guest tickets. The tickets will be mailed out so that you will receive them in time to see the Monday or Tuesday show. The Courier will publish the names of the winners on Monday. No letters will be returned and the decision of the judges must be taken as final.

"Philadelphia Story" stars Cary Grant, James Stewart and Katharine Hepburn and is an adaptation of the Broadway stage success of the same name.

Hitler. "I'd rather look like Churchill if I have to resemble somebody," Ferland asserted.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

Gay and refreshing as a spring breeze, Anna Neagle's new vehicle, "No. No, Nanette," opened at the Bristol Theatre yesterday to prove itself even more entertaining than her recent "Irene."

The new picture revolves about a girl's hectic romance with two young men, a romance that results from her efforts to help her millionaire uncle out of some feminine complications, and the result is a swift-paced and lively offering, enlivened with catchy songs and dance routines and plenty of comedy.

That charming rascal—the Cisco Kid, is back with new and thrilling adventures in "Romance of the Rio Grande," which started its engagement last night at the Bristol Theatre. Suave, handsome Cesar Romero again brings O. Henry's colorful caballero to life.

GRAND THEATRE

Franchot Tone essays the first Western role of his career in heading an imposing cast in Universal's new adventure epic, "Trail of the Vigi-lantes," opening today at the Grand Theatre.

"Trail of the Vigilantes" is likewise the young star's first screen appearance since his lengthy sojourn on the New York stage.

Sharing honors with Tone in "Trail of the Vigilantes" are such well-known players as Warren William, Broderick Crawford, Andy Devine, Mischa Auer, Porter Hall, Peggy Moran and others.

Tone portrays an undercover agent sent to the Western frontier by a Kansas City newspaper to hunt down the murderer of a reporter. At first skeptical of cowboys and their ways, the agent finds himself fascinated by ranch life and, after interesting experiences, coupled with a romance, he decides to stay.

RITZ THEATRE

Confession is said to be good for the soul—so blonde, brown-eyed Virginia Gilmore, Hollywood's latest candidate for stardom, confessed. On the set of "Jennie," her latest picture for 20th Century-Fox which is currently at the Ritz Theatre, she confessed that she once tried being a salesgirl—and lasted one day!

From tenor to tough guy.

This, in brief, is the story of Huntz Hall, who appears with fellow Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys in Universal's "Give Us Wings" coming to the Ritz Theatre.

FINAL GAME OF COURT SERIES TO BE PLAYED TONIGHT

Rohm & Haas Five To Battle For League Crown At Mutual Aid Court

EACH HAVE WON GAME

Franklin A. C. vs. Auto Boys Booked For The Preliminary Contest

Tonight's third and final game of the play-off series to decide the championship of the Bristol Basketball League will be played on the Italian Mutual Aid floor. In the preliminary game, which begins at eight o'clock, Franklin A. C. will play the Auto Boys.

The contesting team in the main event of the evening will be the Rohm & Haas and Manhattan teams, both of which have won a game in the two tilts played. The chemical workers captured the first game, 51-44, and Manhattan was victorious, 45-34, in the second tilt.

Basing the prediction on the records of the teams for the season, the Manhattaners are a slight favorite to cop the game and the crown. In the four meetings between the two teams thus far this season, Manhattan has won over the Maple Beach aggregation three times. Two of these games were by close scores, while the other was a walk-away.

The game will be a fight between a club which works in fine union with good passing and co-operation against a club which contains a list of sharpshooters from the top of the lineup down.

All season, the Manhattan club has proven consistent passing and working together pays big dividends. Their victories have been close at times but the team seemed to play better together when under pressure. Most of the time during the season, the soapmen had only six players available for a game but fought it out, hoping that no one would leave for personal foul reasons.

Rohm & Haas have the eagle-eye basket-men on their team. It plays a different style of basketball than the soap-workers and only at times exhibit a fine passing and co-operative attack. Most of their passes are the long heaves from one end of the court to the other and the players who receive over three-quarters of the passes are "Angie" Everitt and Ralph Cahill who are perched under the nets.

It was this type of passing which the Manhattan team broke up in the game on Monday night, broke it up so that it was practically useless throughout the entire tilt. The bullet-passes of the chemical workers were ineffective and when that phase of the game was broken up, the Maple Beach team could not score.

Another problem which will rest on the Rohm & Haas shoulders is what to do with Joe "Unkle" Gallagher. Gallagher has remained in the background as a stationary guard most of the season but in the last few games has let loose so that his scoring has reached the double-figures. First it was the job of watching "Punkie" Zeffries and Joe Snyder. Then Nick Hufnell presented himself as a scoring ace and now suddenly Gallagher pops into the picture to make it a difficult matter. Mulligan and "Rip" Kelly, the other guards, occasionally break into a scoring spree and may cause some trouble. "Brook" Harkins is a long distance shooter who also has his "on" nights.

Thus far in the series, Manhattan has succeeded in stopping Ralph Cahill and "Angie" Everitt, but cannot stop the shooting of Joe Roe and Manager Johnny Cole. Cole and Roe have been the backbone of the Rohm & Haas lineup thus far and if the soap-workers can succeed in stopping these two and keep Jesse Vanzant busy as a guard then the championship will go to the Manhattaners.

The Auto Boys will be considerably strengthened for its game with Franklin. Manager Lloyd McGintley announced last night that he will use "Howie" Berry and Joe Cahill against the Franks. Berry and Cahill are members of the Voltz-Texaco team. Berry finished in the first ten scorers of the league while Cahill was the unheralded champion foul-shooter of the circuit, sinking in 17 out of 23 tries. The remainder of the Auto Boys lineup will not be changed.

The Franks finished in fourth place in both halves of the league and won seven of their 14 scheduled games, a fine record for a school team.

Manager Mike LaSalle and Coach Pete Borne will stick to the same lineup as the team is playing in a Philadelphia tournament and Coach Borne does not wish to break up the combination. The team has won both of their scheduled games in the tournament.

Fans are requested to arrive early for seats to make the seating arrangements easier as it is difficult to move chairs about once the game gets under way.

Croydon and Trenton Girls Will Do Battle Tonight

CROYDON, Mar. 13—The Croydon Tamblers will play the Trenton girls' hockey team tonight at the Croydon rink. It will be the second game of the season, and both will be fighting to win. The Croydon girls are hoping that their captain, Dot Bennett, will continue her good work.

The Croydon girls have been put through severe practice by their coach, "Bud" Ritter, and manager "Bill" Sottum.

The Croydon girls have won three and tied one. The Trenton girls on four and tied two.

FRANKLIN IS DRUBBED BY LIONS, 52 TO 31

The Franklin A. C. traveled to Philadelphia last evening and on the Bok Vocational School floor received a sound drubbing from the fast Lions Boys' Club of Philadelphia, which eliminates them from further competition in the tourney. Final score read: Lions, 52; Franklin, 31.

It was all Frankie Robinson last night as the Lions seemed to score at will. Robinson rang up the amazing total of 26 points with 13 double-deckers. He was putting them through the net from all angles of the floor, and it seemed that every time he would let go of the ball the winners would add two points to their total.

The winners produced a team that not only had a great advantage in height, but also showed more experience. They possessed a wonderful passing attack to score at will, and on the defense kept continually breaking up the Franklin passing attack.

While Robinson did the greater part of scoring for the winners, the losers' points were scattered. The Petrick brothers, Bill and Bob, with Pete DeLuca, scored eight points each for the losing team.

One bright spot that Franklin did possess was that not one foul was called against them last night; and the team which has a bad average in foul shooting caged seven of their eight foul shots.

BASKETBALL SEASON DRAWS TO A CLOSE; MORRISVILLE TOPS IN LOWER BUCKS SCHOOL GROUP

By Jack Gill

A few notations on basketball are in order. Soon the last ball will have swished the mesh or harmlessly rolled around the rim in sickening fashion. As for Lower Bucks schoolboy proceedings it appears as if the Bulldogs of Morrisville are just about unstoppable in district ranks. "Monotonous Morrisville" is the cry of the craftsmen who engrave the winner's name on championship trophies. In their best follow up shot of the season they trumped their grid title with a basketball diadem.

The picturesque yellow building that perches "high on a windy hill" in old Bulldogtown met its only defeat in league competition right here in town. Bristol suddenly found that it could play basketball and completely dominated a hard fought fray. Outside of that Morrisville encountered little trouble.

All around the league, however, the play was better balanced than during any previous season. The dividing up of the organization into two sections gave the game back to the boys. Players in the "little three" participated in hard fought frays that took away the overwhelming thrashings once absorbed twice yearly from Morrisville, Bristol and Fallsington. Instead, they played ball in their own backyard and faced teams of their own equal.

Thus one also found a decline in the play of the larger schools. In breaking away from the weaker foes, whom they were forced to card each winter for the mere formality of being in the league, the larger institutions were forced to search for new opponents. They stepped up the ladder and scheduled squads of faster calibre. Bristol, for instance, played the hardest court card it has ever been forced to meet. Trenton Catholic, Upper Merion, West Conshohocken and the New Jersey Deaf School were all tough nuts to crack.

From now on when a local schoolboy five sports a basketball win streak it can be taken seriously. The opposition is of true calibre, and is not composed of set-up stuff.

Fallsington High School made perhaps the largest strides of any local team. By finishing in second place the proteges of Coach Jim Doheny established themselves as a definite power to be reckoned with in the future. All the credit in the world must be handed out here. These boys have no gymnasium hitched on to their schoolhouse and much of their practice is of the cave man variety. Doheny toils incessantly for the cause of basketball and each winter heads the students who pinch all of their athletic finances toward one end. That aim is to secure a place to play.

It costs Falls Township High School much money to play basketball in a Trenton Junior High School each year. It also takes time and transportation money. A court once a week is a paradise. Practice always comes the hard way.

Yet this year Fallsington beat Bristol twice and had championship Morrisville hanging on the ropes during the first half. But on both occasions they faltered in the backstretch and Morrisville went on to win the game and the championship. There are still many who believe that the Orange possessed the best appearing team in the "Big Three." On the surface their play looked very good.

Now, after the ball is over and when one has had time to stop and think, perhaps little Fallsington, with a student body only about half as large as their two loop opponents, Bristol and Morrisville, lost because they were not in proper condition to withstand the terrific pressure of those last sixteen minutes against the champs. Struggling desperately hard to gain the pinnacle of basketball success against schools that were "haves", the Fallsington boys were the "have nots".

Against insurmountable odds they nearly upset the apple cart. They had the heart, the ability and the zest for competitive action, but their best was just a little bit short. Such persistence deserves not only a big break in the won and lost column, but also a modern up to date gymnasium. But before physical education for American youth in high schools there seems to be more money for bullets and battleships. Let us forget that men must first man these ramparts. Langhorne High School suffers from the same athletic malnutrition. The boys who want to play cannot because they have no place in which to strut their stuff. As a result, they stopped trying and threw in the sponge during the court season. Fallsington courageously keeps plugging.

Bristol found itself still in the doldrums athletically. Never have they experienced such mediocrity. Last in football and not one bit better during the basketball season.

Bensalem and Southampton were on even par in the "Little Three", with the Owls finally finding themselves at the proper opportune moment. Buckingham was the worst in district play.

All the way around better balance prevailed. Formerly the smaller schools took trouncings from their superior rivals. Psychologically this hurts the boys' morale. On the same footing physically, they were not on equal terms stressed by coaches and on accommodations offered. It tended to add to the defeatist attitude of the boy. By stark contrast, this is what high school heads are trying to eliminate.

Auction Proceeds To Be Used for Aid To Britain

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 13—"A marvelous time!"

That is what the committee in charge of the Bucks County auction scheduled for Saturday evening at 7.30 in the Moose hall, here, promises those who attend.

Some fine bargains are offered, nice articles at inexpensive prices. Leigh Mitchell Hodges and Frederic Jaekel, the auctioneers, are to be aided by Moss Hart, prominent playwright.

"You can bid on a bicycle or an original Rudyard Kipling letter," state committeemen. "Perhaps you'd rather have a registered bull calf or radio-phonograph; or author-autographed books; antique furniture, glass, paintings."

"There will be attractive tables piled high with fine foods and flowers. Grab bags manned by attractive young women. Paintings and sculpture that would bring high prices in the market! Another sought-after prize is a pedigree English setter puppy."

The auction is sponsored by the British War Relief Society, with Miss Ellen Ross, Doylestown, chairman. The money derived will be used toward purchase of a mobile feeding station, to be sent from Bucks County to war-torn Britain.
